Internet Web Page Privacy & Security Practices

The County of Westmoreland (the “County”) respects your privacy! The information below explains how we gather information on this site and the technology we use to ensure that your information is private and secure.

Information Collecting

This site does not place a “cookie” on your computer.

The County does analyze our web site activity by tracking your movements through the site. This is done by collecting your IP address when you access our site. Each computer on the internet has an Internet Protocol (IP) address. We use IP addresses to track the number of visits to our site and to identify our most popular pages. This helps us improve the performance and value of the materials available on this web site.

At some point, you may wish to contact us via email. The information that you provide us with is used solely to fulfill your online request.

The County of Westmoreland does not share, sell, or trade any information collected on our site.

External Links

For your convenience, we provide some links on this site that lead to resources outside the County’s web site. We are not responsible for the privacy practices of the sites that we link to. Whenever we provide an external link, you will see a small exit symbol ( ↗ ) which indicates that you will leave our site if you click on the link.

Your comments

If you have questions regarding this privacy statement, the practices of this site, or your interaction with this web site, please contact us.

Legal Disclaimer

The County of Westmoreland, Virginia (the "County") provides this web site (the "web site") information and services "as is" without warranty of any kind, either expressed or implied. The County does not warrant the accuracy, authority, completeness, usefulness, timeliness, or fitness for a particular purpose of its information or services. The County, its officials and employees shall not be liable for any loss or injury caused in whole or part by its negligence, contingencies beyond its control, loss of data, or errors or omissions in the web site information or services.

The presence of links to external web sites should not be taken as an endorsement by the County of these sites or their content. The existence of these links should not be interpreted as County sanction, approval or authorization of the information on, or the information that is obtainable through these other homepages.
